

the Art Cellar

Kathy Myers Reece

"To me, painting is as much about emotion and feeling as it is about applying paint to the canvas with a pallet knife. It is the emotional aspect that draws me to the concrete act of painting. I started studying with my Aunt when I was in the sixth grade. I was born knowing I was a painter. Because of the support and encouragement of many, I have been blessed to create my entire life. I enjoy the solitude of painting in the studio and simultaneously, I enjoy the interaction with subject matter, people and animals when I paint on location. I can't believe how fortunate I am to be able to paint and create. There is always a feeling of fullness and expectancy just under the surface that pushes me forward."

- Kathy Myers Reece

1994 to present- Studio painter, studios in Raleigh, NC and Valle Crucis, NC

Kathy's paintings are in collections across the United States and England.